
Why Scrum was chosen for this project

The product is built in layers that each need the one before: the marketplace evaluates writers on analytics, and analytics need published articles. Fixed 2-week sprints deliver those layers in order, each one a working increment the next builds on, and each with written exit criteria, which is what lets every release chapter show evidence rather than assert completion.